1. General news

We recently ordered a number of items from an online web shop, which, when the items arrived, we found two items were missing. One item was discontinued and one was out of stock. You may think this is shoddy practice and so do we. That is why we only display items on our web shop that are actually in stock. True, we may have to assemble a kit or print off a pattern, etc. but we ensure we don't offer for sale items we can't supply. We even ensure that if we show yarn for sale that the quantity we show is the same within one dye lot number, as there can be minor variations between dye lots. We can't promise that an instance will never occur where we can't supply an item (e.g. finding a sole item in stock to be damaged before we despatch it) but we will always contact the customer first and agree what course of action to take. It may be an old fashioned idea, but we like to deal with our customers, as we would like to be dealt with ourselves.

2. Buttercup Miniatures is now on Twitter

We are pleased to announce we are now on Twitter and you can follow us here. If you wish to keep up to date with all new patterns as they are released, details of pattern sales on Ravelry or sales/offers on our web shop, then follow us on Twitter and you will receive a tweet whenever we have news to impart. If you experience problems accessing the web site, blog or our web shop can also check on Twitter to see if we are experiencing any problems, as we will try and post a message if we do - although if this kind of problem occurs in the middle of the night (UK time), we may not be aware of any problems until the following morning.
